

ABSTRACT

Rohman, Ainur. 2013. High School Photography Malang. Thesis. Architecture Department. Saint and Technology Faculty. State Islamic University Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang. Advisor Andi Baso Mappaturi, MT and Sukmayati Rahma, MT.

Keywords : High School, Photography, Deconstruction, Malang

Today photography has become an inseparable from the daily activities. Start from formal events, special moments until becoming a hobby. Especially for those who live in urban areas, the camera becomes a compulsory item. It is well recognized by the manufacturers of communication devices that include cameras in every output of their latest products.

Malang is a city that always keep up with technology, with the development of a camera is no exception. Along with the high public interest in photography, and a lot of people every year who are studying in Malang and diverse culture and beautiful natural scenery. It is potential when the High School was established in Malang City Photography can accommodate public interest in the world of photography so that it can be directed to be a professional.

Efforts that look at photography more than just a hobby and can become professional way through deconstruction. It is trying to ask an understanding question that had been regarded as absolute truth by the general public and then dismantled and realign become a new understanding.