

ABSTRACT

Faizah. 2013. Family relations support to students learning motivation SMPN 13 Malang Thesis. Malang: Faculty of Psychology, Islamic University of MMI

Supervisor: Dr. Hj. Rifa Hidayah, M.Si. psi

Keywords: Family support, motivation to learn

Middle school students (SMP) often experience decreased motivation to learn from the self, one reason for lack of support from family or (Family Support). Less motivation from parents also can lead to difficult students excel in school and outside school. Thus the need for the support of parents to motivate children to continue to be able to excel in school and outside of school because of family support have links related to student motivation.

The purpose of this study was to determine the level of Family support, the level of motivation to learn and support the Family Relationships Motivation to learn

This study uses quantitative methods to research subjects totaling 76 subjects, who are students of class VII and VIII SMP 13 Malang. Techniques of data collection using a questionnaire with Likert scale data analysis in research using the technique of Karl Pearson product moment correlation.

From the results of this study to know that family support in the students of SMP 13 Malang has a level of family support category were 35 percent of respondents with 46%, while the level of student motivation student category Moderate category 36 percent of respondents with 47%. The correlation between family support and motivation of learners indicated r count is equal to 0.523 with a significance of 0.000. means that there is a positive relationship between family support with participants' learning motivation of students in SMP 13 Malang.