

ABSTRACT

Nur Laili Hidayati. 2014. Thesis. Title: "The Effect of Purchase Financing, Financing For Results, Lease Financing, and the ratio of Non Performing Financing on Liquidity Islamic Banks in Indonesia".

Supervisor: Dr. H. Ahmad Djalaluddin, Lc., M.A

Keywords: Sales, Profit Sharing, Lease Financing, NPF, Liquidity

This study aimed to examine the effect of purchase financing, financing for the results, lease financing, and the ratio of non-performing financing on liquidity Islamic banks in Indonesian (the period January 2011 - September 2013).

The method used in this study is a quantitative descriptive with the aim to get an idea of how much influence purchase financing, profit sharing financing, lease financing, and the ratio of non-performing financing to the liquidity of Islamic banks in Indonesia. Data was collected in the secondary is data obtained from quarterly financial statements published by any Islamic banks into the sample through the website of each bank.

The results obtained in this study simultaneously (test F) financing the sale and purchase, profit sharing financing, lease financing, the ratio of non-performing financing significant effect on the liquidity of Islamic banks in Indonesia (the period January 2011 - September 2013) with a significance value of 0.000. Partial test (t test) showed that there are two variables that significantly positive liquidity Islamic banks, namely the variable purchase and financing of non-performing financing ratio. Meanwhile, two other variables are variables for the results of financing and lease financing significant negative effect on Islamic banks in Indonesia.