Spiritual intelligence is the highest intelligence of human beings as well, this intelligence is the most fundamental basic center among other intelligence, and spiritual intelligence relates to one's inner qualities that drive to kindness and truth.

Altruism is an action that gifted or directed at others and provide positive benefits for others or the person subject to the act done voluntarily and without expecting anything in return, or just for friendship, this attitude is not based on pressure or even attitude norm even though this can be detrimental for the helper.

This research is a quantitative study, aimed to determine the relationship between altruism spiritual intelligence among students of the Faculty of Psychology at the State Islamic University of Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang. In this study there are two variables, spiritual intelligence variables as an independent variable and altruism variable as the dependent variable. Samples from this study were psychology students years 2010-2013 UIN Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang as many as 73 students, the sampling technique used is random sampling. Instrument used is the scale of spiritual intelligence and altruism scale bethouf them using a Likert scale of measurement. The validity of measuring instruments obtained from the person product moment correlation and Cronbach alpha reliability of  $\alpha = 0.912$  with the results for spiritual intelligence and  $\alpha = 0.913$  for altruism. Methods of data analysis using product moment correlation person.

The results of this study indicate that the correlation between multiple spiritual intelligence with altruism is the significance value 0.876. This suggests that the hypothesis proposed in this study received evidenced by the positive relationship between spiritual intelligence with altruism, meaning that the higher level of spiritual intelligence level, the higher one's own altruism, conversely the lower the level of spiritual intelligence, the lower the level of altruism someone had.
